The 2000 election was a turning point in the American political system. It was the first time that the United States had a president who was not a member of the two major parties. The election was a surprise to many people, as it was widely expected that either Al Gore or George W. Bush would win. However, the election was a close race, and the results were not known until the night of the election. The election was a turning point in the American political system, as it was the first time that the United States had a president who was not a member of the two major parties.

There is a growing awareness of the importance of the environment in the development of the world. The environment is a natural resource that is essential for the survival of all living organisms. It is a finite resource that is being depleted at an alarming rate. The environment is a complex system that is interconnected and interdependent. As the industry grows, the need for more information about the environmental impact of these products is growing. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has issued a rule requiring manufacturers to provide information about the environmental impact of their products. This information is used by the EPA to develop environmental policy and to inform the public. The rule also requires manufacturers to provide information about the environmental impact of their products to the public. This information is used by the public to make informed decisions about the products they purchase.

A 40-year-old male, asymptomatic, presented with a 2-cm, well-circumscribed, firm, subcutaneous nodule on the right lower leg. The lesion was asymptomatic and had been present for several years. The patient had no history of trauma, surgery, or systemic disease. The lesion was excised and sent for histopathologic examination. The histopathologic findings were consistent with a benign fibrous histiocytoma.

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health-related quality of life (HRQL) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were randomly assigned to a 12-week training program (n = 20) or a control group (n = 20). The training program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 45 minutes. The control group remained sedentary. The subjects were assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks. The primary outcome was the change in HRQL, measured using the EuroQol-5D questionnaire. The secondary outcome was the change in physical fitness, measured using the 6-minute walk test. The results showed that the training program had a significant positive effect on HRQL and physical fitness. The subjects in the training group showed a significant increase in HRQL and a significant increase in the 6-minute walk test compared to the control group. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the physical fitness and HRQL of sedentary, middle-aged women.

'Pyramid' suspect nabbed

A man suspected of being involved in the construction of a pyramid-shaped building in a remote area of the Philippines has been arrested by police. The man, who is in his late 30s, was caught while attempting to flee the country. He is currently being held in custody and is facing charges of illegal construction and human rights violations. The building, which is believed to be a pyramid, has been the subject of much speculation and controversy. The police are currently investigating the case and are expected to release more details in the coming days.

No UP president yet; Roman, Espiritu tied

day at 8:30 a.m.

All state universities are governed by their BORs, whose members are mostly appointed by Malacañang.

For UP, the ex-officio BOR members are Pr. Rolando de la Rosa, head of the Commission on Higher Education, who serves as chair; incumbent UP president Dr. Francisco Nemenzo, vice chair; Sen. Juan Ponce Enrile, chair of the Senate committee on education; Rep. Cynthia Villar, chair of the House committee on education; Prof. Sergio Joco, faculty representative; Gen. Jaime de los Santos, alumni representative; and Marco Dominco de los Reyes, student representative.

The other members are the five presidential appointees: Filemon Berba, Edmundo Varona, Nena Gonzales, Paruna Sinuat and retired Supreme Court Justice Abraham Sarmiento.

Suspense

"It seems like the whole world is waiting for what would happen," said Prof. Martin Gregorio, the university and BOR secretary.

Gregorio recalled that the last time the board failed to choose a president due to a voting deadlock was in 1958. It took two more years before a president was finally elected, he said.

Since then, the BOR had always been able to pick a president, either by consensus or by a majority vote, through secret balloting.

The next UP president will replace Nemenzo, who is due to retire on Feb. 9, 2005, when he turns 70. He assumed office in 1999. Had he not reached retirement age, Nemenzo would have enjoyed a six-year term like his predecessors.

In the past, the board had needed only up to two rounds of balloting to select the president from a list of nominees. This year, it had 10 nominees, all prominent in their own fields, to choose from. But apparently, its members were already dead-set on their choice before Monday's voting.

Nominees

Aside from the front-running Roman and Espiritu, the nominees were former UP College of Mass Communications dean Georgina Encanto, former CHED Chair Ester Garcia, former Socioeconomic Secretary Solua Monsod, Consolacion Alaras, Soledad Cagampang-de Castro, Ernesto de Castro, Federico Macaranas and Eduardo Sison.

Before she became chancellor of the UP's biggest campus in Diliman, Quezon City, Roman was university and BOR secretary. UP-Diliman vice chancellor and BOR faculty regent.

On the other hand, Espiritu served as finance secretary to former Presidents Fidel V. Ramos and Joseph Estrada, and sat in the

ROMAN

ESPIRITU

BOR as alumni representative.

Lobbying

Earlier, the UP administration hosted sectoral consultations on the various campuses where the nominees presented their platforms. Lobbying, however, extended to outside the university.

Gregorio said the regents agreed at the start to a secret balloting and to allow the chair, De la Rosa, to vote. (The BOR chair was also allowed to vote in the 1993 and 1999 elections).

The members also agreed that a nominee had to get at least seven votes, regardless of abstention, to become president.

After the first deadlock, Gregorio said the board proceeded to the second balloting, which had a similar result. It took a recess after the third balloting.

sidered more of a broadsheet when it comes to content," noted Venus Navalta, managing director of Universal McCann Philippines, the country's biggest ad agency.

Libre's news stories are sourced from the Philippine Daily Inquirer and translated into Filipino.

Navalta said Libre projected an image so unlike the usual newspapers in tabloid format that Libre all by itself had brought about a change in companies' attitudes toward advertising in tabloids.

Libre, according to Navalta, "effected a paradigm shift because it does not have the negative image associated with (other) tabloids."

"In the past, despite the higher readership of tabloids compared to broadsheets, advertisers (shied) away from using (them) as a media vehicle because of the editorial environment," she said.

Navalta was apparently referring to the tab's daily fare of barely dressed actresses on the front pages and screaming, sensationalized crime stories.

Positive image

Navalta said companies that wished to place ads preferred "to project a positive image and would not want to be associated with sensationalism and sleaze."

The ad executive added that companies traditionally chose not to advertise in tabloids because their readers "have a different mindset for buying (them)."

Thus, ad placements in tabloids were usually limited to "return-to-work notices," Navalta said.

Circulation: 115,000

Then Libre began publication on Nov. 19, 2001.

For it to survive, it had to have revenues from ad placements as it is distributed free Monday to Friday mainly in the two Light Railway Transit (LRT) and in the Metro Rail Transit (MRT) systems that shuttle some 400,000 commuters through Metro Manila every day. And Libre got the ads to sustain it. Today, Libre has a circulation of 115,000, a print run significantly larger than some of the broadsheets of national circulation.

Navalta added that aside from Libre's positive readership image, advertisers preferred to put placements "because of the paper's flexibility in doing creative media executions."

Libre innovated the use of false covers that allow readers to view advertisements on the front page before turning to the banner story.

RP farmers earn less than Thais, Vietnamese

By Anselmo Roque
PDI Central Luzon Desk

SCIENCE CITY OF MUÑOZ—High costs of labor and farm machinery use make Filipino rice farmers earn much less than their counterparts in Thailand and Vietnam, studies conducted by researchers of the Philippine Rice Research Institute (PhilRice) and the International Rice Research Institute (IRRI) showed.

To produce a ton of paddy, Filipino farmers spend $66 (about P3,720) for labor and machinery costs, the study showed. Their counterparts in Thailand spend $33 (P1,620) while those in Vietnam $51 (P2,575).

The studies, however, said expenses for other needs in rice production, like fertilizer, seeds, pesticides and other costs, were almost the same in the three countries.

The labor costs represent fees for harvesting, threshing and crop establishment.

IRRI researchers Fernando Moya and David Dawe said. The farmers spend for only five man-days of labor per hectare for harvesting, threshing and hauling while Filipino farmers spend for 30 man-days for these activities.

Although Vietnamese farmers spend more man-days for harvesting and threshing, their corresponding costs are comparatively lower because of low wage rates in that country, Moya and Dawe said.

The farmers, they said, use a combined harvester-thresher machine that reduces expenses by one-third compared to expenses of Filipino farmers.

Overall, the production cost for a ton of paddy by Filipino farmers was $66 (P3,412), the researchers said.

This cost is higher by $37 (P3,085) than what Thai farmers spend, and by $23 (P1,296) than what Vietnamese farmers shell out.

Thai farmers spend $59 (P3,326) to produce a ton of rice while their counterparts in Vietnam, $74 (P4,171).

The researchers said higher production costs by Filipino farmers in rice growing make them inferior with their counterparts in Thailand and Vietnam in terms of net profit to rice farming.

This fact, they added, makes rice production in the country less competitive than the rice economies in the two countries.

But contrary to common perception, the buying price of paddy in the country is not very low. In fact, studies showed it is the highest in developing countries in Asia.

Studies conducted by PhilRice's Jesusa Cabling and Dawe of IRRI showed that from 1992 to 2001, the average farm gate buying price of paddy in the country was $222 a ton (P12,515).

In 2001, they said, the average buying price of paddy in the country per ton was $160 (P9,000) which was 58 percent higher than Thailand ($101 or P5,693), 36 percent than Vietnam ($114 or P6,652), 42 percent than Indonesia ($112 or P6,314), 40 percent than India ($114 or P6,426) and 14 percent than China ($140 or P7,802).

They said the higher price of paddy in the country is due to a lower supply of the commodity and higher cost of production.

The reason they cited for the low supply of paddy in the country is the relatively small area being used for production compared to other countries that have very large agricultural lands.

Cebu's youngest judge to handle Ecleo case

By Lolene R. Butambat
PDI Visayas Bureau

CEBU CITY—The youngest judge in Cebu has been assigned to handle the high-profile patricide case against cult leader Ruben Ecleo Jr. But she is no pushover.

Judge Geraldine Young of the Regional Trial Court Branch 9 said she does not feel threatened handling the case, which was raffled to her sala on Tuesday afternoon.

"There is no basis to be afraid, it is just a case—a bunch of folders. For me to be afraid is preempring everybody and prejudging the case," she said.

Young, 37, is the sixth judge to handle the patricide case against Ecleo, supreme master of the Philippine Benevolent Missionaries Association, who is accused of killing his wife, Alona Bacolod-Ecleo, in 2002.

She took over from Judge Ireneo Lee Gako who inhibited himself on Oct. 4 following the killing of Arbet Sta. Ana-Yongco, private prosecutor of the case.

Before she was killed inside her house on Oct. 11, Yongco had asked Gako to inhibit from the case for allegedly showing bias in favor of the accused.

The Ecleo case would be a baptism of fire for Young, who has just been appointed to the RTC on Oct. 11.

Prior to that, she was acting judge of a Municipal Trial Court in Cities (MTCC) branch in Cebu City last Feb. 1. She was also presiding judge of Municipal Trial Court in Manglata town in 2002.

Young is not your typical single woman. She is a gun enthusiast who has been a member of the Frontside Gun Club in Manglata since 2002. She also owns a licensed Jericho 941 pistol.

She was also a member of the League of Filipino Students while she was taking a degree in philosophy at the University of San Carlos where she also studied law.

She passed the bar in 1994 and immediately took a masters degree in Urban Planning at the University of the Philippines in Diliman.

Now that the case has landed on her lap, Young said she wants to expedite the resolution of the case by conducting a marathon hearing.

She would study the voluminous records of the case over the weekend so by next week, she could decide when to calendar the hearings.

"It's too premature to comment on anything at this stage," she said.

Solon vows to make jueteng legal game

SANTIAGO CITY—The fight may be tough but Rep. Anthony Miranda said he is pushing for his bill seeking to legalize jueteng and allowing local franchisees to operate it.

Miranda, vice chair of the House committee on games and amusement said the bill, if approved, would level the playing field as legalized jueteng will give equal chances for the rich and the poor.

"If we allow casinos, bingos and lotteries, which are all games of chance then, logically, we should also legalize jueteng, which is the poor man's game," he said.

Miranda be said, should not be an issue because games of chance have been contributing much to social development projects of the government.

"If the issue here is morality, then we should also let bingo, casino and sweepstakes be declared illegal but that could not be because of the social process or help. The best thing is to legalize jueteng," he said.

Once jueteng is legalized, local governments can own franchises to operate the numbers game that will raise revenues for both the national and local governments, he added.

"This will eventually translate to additional and available funds for the delivery of basic services and implementation of infrastructure projects and programs for local governments. In this scenario, the poor patrons and bettors will be the direct beneficiaries from these revenues to be obtained from (the) numbers game," he said.

Miranda said the legalization move would remove the doubts over alleged porky grease money being received by some police and local government officials.

Workers tell Cory: Don't need prayers, let us talk

If it ain't broke, why fix it? Says labor chief

MANILA, Sept. 14 (AP) — Labor leaders here today urged President Corason Aquino to stop praying for the resolution of the 10-month-old strike by the 100,000 members of the Philippine Federation of Labor Unions (PFLU) and instead to negotiate with the union.

The PFLU leaders said that the strike was not a result of a lack of solidarity among the workers, but rather a result of the government's failure to address the workers' demands for better wages and working conditions.

Rising consumer prices worry IMF

By Steve A. Korman

MANILA, Nov. 15 (AP) — The International Monetary Fund (IMF) warned Tuesday that rising consumer prices in the Philippines could lead to a recession if not controlled.

The fund's latest report on the Philippines, released Tuesday, says the country's economy is "on a growth path that is sustainable and inclusive." But it also notes that inflation is a concern.
